
HELLO, MY NAME IS REMY.

YOU COULD TAKE ME HOME SOON!

Remy (Remus) is a handsome, 2.5yo, working-line German shepherd dog. He is a medium-high energy/intensity dog, an amazing hiking friend. Remus would make an excellent companion for a single, active person in the city- perhaps a very active family, who could approach his training as a part-time job. Remy is still building urban confidence, he would do best in a home without children, or perhaps older, dog savvy children. Confident cats could certainly be okay. Remy does well with dogs at day care- as he doesn't know his own strength, he needs to keep the company of similar, or very confident dogs (often, not small dogs). Remus has been doing well within an apartment for the past two years, it's possible he could adjust to another.

Off Leash K9 built a foundation for Remus' training. He does very well with running, hiking, or possibly scent tracking. Contingency training is necessary (Remy is still young), but many basics are covered. Remus' displays some anxious behaviors, perhaps all of which could be redirected. With time and consistency, it is likely Remy could learn a rich, broad set of skills and develop into a calm, confident dog.

As Remus falls within a breed category historically discriminated against, his people wish to be discerning in placing his new, permanent home. If this animal sounds a fit for your home, please reach out! (see below)
